The Reinhold Diceware Method

Diceware is a method invented by Arnold G. Reinhold in 1995 to generate cryptographically strong passphrases without trusting any computer. Each word is selected uniformly at random by rolling 5 six-sided dice.

Method (apply exactly)

- 1 Get 5 six-sided dice (or roll one die 5 times).
- 2 Roll the dice. Read the digits left to right -- you obtain a number from 11111 to 66666.
- 3 Find this number in the table that follows. The matching word is your first word.
- 4 Repeat for each subsequent word.
- 5 Write the passphrase on paper. Store it in a safe physical location. NEVER type it into a web app for verification.

Important -- operational security:

The passphrase exists only in your brain (and on paper backup). NEVER type it into ANY computer for validation. If you need to verify, use the standalone HTML tool provided with SelfRecover (offline mode).

Recommended word counts

Words	Entropy	Use case
4 words	51.7 bits	Web account (low stakes)
5 words	64.6 bits	Common recommendation
6 words	77.5 bits	Sensitive accounts (admin, sudo)
7 words	90.5 bits	Reasonable paranoia
8 words	103.4 bits	Recommended for root server access
10 words	129.3 bits	Equivalent of AES-128
